profile

Christian Abouchaker is an Associate with McMillan's Business Law Group. He is building a practice focused on mergers and acquisitions and general corporate transactions.

After completing his articles with the firm, Christian pursued a Juris Doctor at Université de Montréal. He also holds three years of combined experience with the Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy of Canada, where he acquired significant experience analyzing and investigating legal and business information when dealing with various stakeholders in the bankruptcy process.

Christian then moved his practice to New York, pursuing an LL.M. at New York University School of Law with a focus on corporate law and privacy. He then acted as a consultant to a start-up social media company as well as boutique legal practices, offering legal support on corporate law and intellectual property matters. He was recently admitted to the New York State Bar.

During his legal studies, Christian served as a law clerk to the Honourable Pierre J. Dalphond at the Court of Appeal of Québec.
