profile

David Rosentzveig is a partner in the Business Law Group in Montréal. He practices business, corporate and real estate law, with a strong emphasis on leading negotiations and devising workable solutions to complex problems. David has a reputation as a deal-maker.

Assisting start-ups, modeling partnerships and joint ventures, structuring mergers and completing acquisitions and sales of businesses are David's daily challenges. Transactions are invariably multi-party, involving the parties to the underlying deal as well as investment partners, venture capitalists and traditional lenders. David often handles cross-border, international and multi-jurisdictional transactions and is co-chair of the firm's International Affiliations Committee, having developed strong relationships with business lawyers throughout the world.

David's clients, mostly privately-held, mid-sized businesses, look to him to provide sound, reasoned and practical business advice on all types of commercial transactions and business law issues. Many of these clients consider David to be their general counsel and involve him in most major decisions affecting their businesses.

Industries with which David has considerable experience include aerospace, security and defense, metal recycling and manufacturing, industrial chemicals, food ingredients, textiles, electrical products, software development and licensing, furniture, hospitality, real estate development, management and construction, as well as numerous retail and service industries.
